Thinking Spring Clear-out?

Declutter For a Cause in Support of the Royal LePage National Garage Sale For Shelter

On Saturday, May 15th 2010, the Royal LePage Lakes of Haliburton Brokerage Minden office parking lot will be transformed into an oasis for bargain hunters as we host a "National Garage Sale for Shelter" event in support of the Shelter Foundation, the YWCA Women's Centre of Haliburton County and the Haliburton Emergency Rural Safespace (HERS). Last year this garage sale raised more than $120,000 to help abused women and children across Canada.

Since 1999, Royal LePage agents, brokers and staff have donated more than $10 million to support women's shelters and violence prevention and education programs from coast to coast. In May, during shelter month at Royal LePage, it's our time to celebrate giving back to the community. Locally, this fundraiser is being coordinated by Royal LePage Broker Patti Johnson and Administrator Vicki Sisson.

Here in Haliburton County, the YWCA offers emergency accommodations for women and their children at HERS, with a flexible length of stay in a private, safe and comfortable place. The YWCA Women's Centre also offers Crisis and Support Counseling to women, Violence Prevention Programs and Outreach and Well-Being Programs at no charge to the Haliburton community.

Together, we're a great team. Royal LePage is Canada's leading provider of franchise services to residential real estate brokerages, and the YWCA is Canada's single largest provider of shelter services to women and their children who are fleeing abuse. Working together locally, we can help to make a difference in the lives of women in Haliburton County.

Every single nickel and dime generated at the Royal LePage Lakes of Haliburton Brokerage's garage sale will go to support our local YWCA Women's Centre and HERS, and our provincial and national programs to help stop the cycle of violence. All the money and effort goes back to this cause because Royal LePage underwrites 100 per cent of the administration costs.

Members of our Haliburton County communities are encouraged to join in and de-clutter for a cause. So if you're thinking it's time for a spring clear-out, please start setting aside your unused or gently used items to be donated to this sale. We will be advertising specific drop-off dates for your items in the weeks leading up to the May 15 sale.

Help us offer some great deals for a great cause. Set aside your unused or gently used garage items now for our local garage sale for shelter in support of HERS. Please note that unfortunately we cannot accept any large upholstered furniture or mattresses. Please watch this publication for upcoming drop-off dates for your items. For more information, please contact Vicki Sisson at 286-1234, ext. 232.

The trophies and sweaters will also be available for viewing later that evening on Friday at the Haliburton Curling Club. Join Scotty and his special guests for a delicious four course dinner catered by Rhubarb and a fun evening of great hockey stories starting at 7.30pm.

Don't miss Saturday night when the special exhibition game will take place from 7pm to 9pm. Watch the game between the four time world champions Canadian men's amputee team versus the OPP.

Hardcore Paint & Stain

Hardcore Paint and Stain - Interior & Exterior Specialist

Shawn Heasman owner of Hardcore Paint and Stain, a successful painting and staining business that has been operating out of Harcourt since 2007, commits to the jobs you don't always have time for.

Interior / exterior painting and staining, refinishing of decks, docks and floors, wallpaper stripping and glass blasting are just some of the services available from Hardcore Paint and Stain.

No job is too small or large for them and they are committed to quality and their word. Shawn explains, "We are there when we say we are going to be and we call back when we say we will. We keep competitive prices and have a team of experienced painters."

Shawn started the company when he moved to the Highlands five years ago. Settling down in Harcourt from Brampton, with his wife Catherine and baby daughter Veronica, he says that, "I've been coming to the area as a cottager since I was a child. I didn't want to live in the city anymore, I just enjoy the outdoors too much. The lakes, country roads and trails can't be beat!" In his spare time Shawn volunteers for the Highlands East Fire Department and is currently training at the Norwood Fire Academy and will graduate there at the end of June.

Hardcore Paint and Stain have completed numerous houses and cottages in the area as well as larger projects such as Blue Sky Yoga in Haliburton, Bancroft IDA and North Hastings daycare. The company has also completed exterior work on McKecks Blue Line and Sharpleys Source for Sports.

Shawn and his team are always available across Haliburton County and throughout Ontario. They offer free quotes customized to your needs. Shawn knows that not everyone enjoys the task but he welcomes the challenge and says, "It takes a steady hand and lots of practice but it seems to come natural to me. You are constantly changing jobs, meeting new people and going to new areas so it's a very interesting job."

Hardcore Paint and Stain can provide onsite consultations, helping customers with colour choices and matching stains and paint colours. The company offers the complete package. This includes proper preparation of all surfaces such as; removal of doorknobs, light switches and fixtures, filling nailing holes, sanding between coats and caulking before the final coat of paint is applied.

They have recently expanded to glass blasting which is an environmentally friendly method of restoring weathered wood surfaces to their original state quickly. Shawn has blasted numerous log and timber frame homes to enhance features and offer a clean new look. Not only does it finish wood it also can be used on anything that needs a vigorous clean. The difference is night and day and you'll be left with a product that looks brand new. Instead of buying a new wood table or

Razzamataz Kid Show

Razzamataz Kids Shows and The HHSS Redhawk's Theater Company present "The Complete Adventures of Red Riding Hood."

For the first time the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Redhawk's Theater Company will be creating and performing the entire production in conjunction with Razzamataz Kids Shows! This is a wonderful opportunity to see some of the amazing talent available in Haliburton County.

The Complete Adventures of Red Riding Hood explains what really happened when Red Riding Hood went for a walk in the woods. On her way she encounters a wolf and she helps out her new friends Hansel and Gretel, Snow White and Rapunzel. When Grandma is in danger, Red and her friends come to the rescue.

Razzamataz Kids Shows are proud to bring four unique and child friendly theatre productions to Haliburton County every year. The shows are always lively and tend to encourage lots of audience participation whether they bring silly songs that stick in your head, a chance to try out a new musical instrument, a theatrical production or examples of other cultures. The only thing that stays the same is the opportunity for a great time and the probability of lots of singing, dancing, movement and laughter. Don't be afraid that your child won't sit still for the whole show. They aren't supposed to! The kids (big and little) are often dancing in their seats or singing in the aisles and the March presentation won't be any different.

To reserve tickets for the March 7th show at the Northern Lights Pavilion call Gesa Haase at 705-754-2586, Adults $8; Children 2 and up $6; Under 2 are free!

Dumb Criminals

Robbers try to open safe with car

Police said two would-be robbers were arrested early Sunday morning in the parking lot of a Swiss Chalet restaurant in Ajax, Ontario (just east of Toronto), after spending more than half-an-hour trying to open a safe they had stolen from the restaurant by driving back and forth over it with a car.

The two men, and a third still being sought, police said, forced two cleaners leaving the Swiss Chalet back into the restaurant at gunpoint, then bound them with duct tape, robbed them, and kicked one cleaner in the head. Then they dragged out the restaurant safe, loaded it into the trunk of one of the cleaners' cars and headed out.

That's when they hit the speed bump in the restaurant parking lot. Out tumbled the safe.

What to do? They decided the safe would open if they drove over it with the car. They did. If didn't. The frustrated robbers tried again. And again. And again.

Damage to the car was extensive but the safe was barely harmed.

A half-hour later, one of the cleaners finally freed himself and called 911. When the police showed up, the men were still busy in the parking lot with the reluctant safe.

Police dogs ran down two suspects aged 18 and 19, who face a variety of charges. Police are still looking for a 21-year-old male suspect.

Man sticks up candy store

My name is David Boyd. I'm a retired Correctional Supervisor (Keeper) with over thirty years of service with the Correctional Service of Canada. I've seen my share of DUMB CROOKS over the years, most of them are caught because they are dumber than dirt. This story always tickled me, and I was there in 1968 when Tiny told it.

Tiny, a 425 pound convict, told another guard and me about his brief spree as a stick-up artist in Toronto. One bitterly cold winter evening, Tiny walked into a mom & pop grocery store, picked up a bag of candy and handed the old man at the register a five dollar bill. When the old fella opened the cash drawer, Tiny told him to put all the cash in a bag. Then Tiny decided to secure the old guy. Spotting a door at the back of the store, he pushed the old guy through it and took a couple of minutes to block the door with a small display case.

Tiny was arrested a few minutes later, sitting in his run down get away car, trying to get it started. He'd left the lights on and the battery was dead. Oh, the door that he pushed the old fellow through? It led to the living quarters, where the old guy called the cops. The door opened into the apartment and, after calling the cops, the old fellow opened the door, stepped over the display case and stood in the doorway of his shop watching Tiny fiddling with the dead battery until the cops arrived. Tiny scored five years for robbery and unlawful confinement. He felt it should have been reduced because he never got his change for the five bucks and didn't get his bag of candy.

Local Haliburtonian Turns Nature Background into Engraving

by Zoe Cittern

After keeping a brochure about an engraving machine in her drawer for 10 years, horticulturist Sonya Patterson decided she should do something with it. After landscaping for a number of years she explains that "I needed a change in my life, landscaping is very labour extensive and I wanted to turn my hand to something a little more relaxing." Ever since Sonya pulled the brochure out from her drawer it hasn't been the same since.

Transferring what she learnt as a horticulturist into engraving has seen her sculptured designs and patterns remarkably intricate and detailed. "I was truly fortunate to be able to landscape, to be in that line of work, it's been a blessing to live and work here" says Sonya. She adds "I've come to have an appreciation for nature and the intricacies and complexities of how it works. I'm now enjoying the art of engraving nature by hand." Sonya is able to engrave a range of differing mediums from wood, metals, ceramics, mirrors, glass and delicate objects such as crystals and even eggshells. By engraving the products with a special design they become personalized which makes them a perfect gift for baby showers, anniversaries, house warming parties, weddings and everyday gifts etc. No two items are the same once they've been engraved ensuing in a special gift. A popular item that Sonya has come to enjoy engraving are gun stocks, she explains that "sculpturing the wood is really an art. To get the contours right of the design that you're engraving is really quite a challenge but its fun. It gives the piece dimension and texture." Sonya's long term goal is to engrave more gun stocks where a multitude of different designs can be processed onto the wood. She says that "I would eventually like to develop the engraving into a profitable hobby and just to have fun with it, it's very relaxing, I really enjoy seeing the product move from start to finish, you have this raw medium and then it changes to something really quite different. You bring life to something that regularly wouldn't seem aesthetically pleasing." Sonya has patiently engraved a number of eggshells, laughing she says "I've probably broken as many eggshells that I've engraved. They make for neat Christmas decorations; they look really interesting when you hang them from objects." Sonya has engraved emu eggs making for interesting and unique gifts. The fragile shells are inspiring to look at and the due care that has gone into the project.

Sonya moved from Oshawa in 1981 to Haliburton to "move away from the fast paced life of the city, I came to visit once and I fell in love, it's a wonderful place to raise children too." She hunts with friends in her free time and says that "hunting is my time to really enjoy nature to its fullest and to enjoy meat that is truly organic."

If you'd like to contact Sonya regarding engraving you can reach her at 705-457-9170. If you are aware of the design that you would like to be engraved you can bring the design with you or email it to her at spaterson74@sympatico.ca. You can see some examples of Sonya's work and discuss your idea with her.

South Algonquin Cookhouse Comes Back By Zoe Cittern

The popular South Algonquin Cookhouse has reopened and is already luring all its old customers back. The Cookhouse is centrally located in Harcourt right next to snowmobile and ATV trails, just up the road from Wilberforce.

John Bower originally purchased the Cookhouse in 2000 and when he decided to sell recently his daughter Cheryl and her husband Wayne Bolger came back to Harcourt to purchase the Cookhouse. They officially opened in January.

Wayne has already cooked for the Queen and now he's cooking for us. Wayne, the head executive chef at the South Algonquin wants to create a comfortable and relaxing atmosphere with a twist. Menu offerings include Alaskan crab and filet mignon with home cooking favourites like liver and onions and chicken pot pie. The menu is broad and diverse allowing a great variety for customers depending on the occasion and mood. Wayne explains that, "Food has evolved so much over the last 10 years. People have become more educated about what they're eating. We're all about fresh and healthy food here. Anything that we can make on the premises we do." Fresh salads, homemade dressings and fruit pies are a tribute to Wayne's talents. The chef is also committed to using local products, "I want to support local farmers and growers. Ideally I'd like to buy within 60km of Harcourt area if I can."

The cookhouse serves breakfasts on the weekend and intends to serve it throughout the week in the summer. They offer a competitive price bracket on meals ranging in price from $8 to $29.

Bolger trained at George Brown College in Toronto. In the mid 1980s he was executive chef at the Old School restaurant in Brantford. A familiar figure was dining one special night, none other than Queen Elizabeth II herself. Wayne says, "It was quite the experience, she was very gracious. I didn't meet her but she just waved through to us all."

Wayne's reputation has followed him through many different restaurants and catering businesses over the year: before returning to Harcourt he ran a catering company for the past six years.

But it's not just the food that has been updated at the Cookhouse: renovations inside the building were completed throughout the restaurant, but Wayne and Cheryl have managed to keep with the cottage country look and feel.

Along with renovations inside the building Cheryl has a few plans for the place including a patio for guests to use in the summer along with possible plans for a mini-golf area for customers to use. Outside of the Cookhouse is an acre of open space that Cheryl intends to landscape as a backdrop for when customers are using the patio.

Customer service is a high priority for the couple. They offer free high speed Internet for customers to use. Cheryl explains, "I wanted a place for cottagers to come so they could use their laptops to check emails when they're away from home. There isn't anything like that available in the area and if they need to stay in touch with home then we can provide that."

The Bolgers want to create a comfortable and classy atmosphere. Wayne says, "It's not the sort of place where you have to wear a shirt and tie. We want a family friendly place here." On birthdays you'll get a free dessert and the owners are so welcoming you won't want to leave. Cheryl is planning on creating a childrens' area in the restaurant to keep the little ones entertained while you enjoy a coffee or tea.

The couple who now live full time in Harcourt enjoy what they describe as "The versatility of the area, we enjoy the quiet. You could drive in Ottawa for hours in traffic, but at least here you might drive for hours but it's set against beautiful scenery."

Cheryl and Wayne have been coming to the Harcourt area for years. Cheryl says how "we would come up and visit my dad but we always wanted to take him out for dinner. The area is lacking in restaurants and bringing the Cookhouse back helps change that for locals and cottagers."

With front house staff and chefs from the local area it was important for the couple to create a teamwork atmosphere. "There is such a well of talent in the local area and we want everyone to grow as the restaurant does" comments Wayne.

The Cookhouse will soon be launching a website where you will be able to book a table online. In the meantime you can phone them at (705) 448-2322. They also have a facebook group South Algonquin Cookhouse that you can check out. The restaurant is open 11am to 8pm on Mondays through Thursdays, 11am to 9pm on Fridays and 8am to 9pm on Saturday and Sundays. In the summer they will extend their hours. □

When treating wooden cutting boards, make sure you use mineral oil, not cooking oil. Cooking oil can go rancid and smell. This goes for wood counters as well.

"Push the cardboard tube from a roll of paper towels into a pot of sand or marbles to create a glove or hat drying station. They will be propped up and open. To dry a hat, I stick a plastic bowl upside down on the tube and put the hat on that. If the pot is big enough, you can stick more rolls in there to dry several items at once." — A.L. in Nebraska

Save it for the garden: tea leaves (including bags), coffee grounds, cooking water from starches like pasta and potatoes, club soda and mineral water that has gone flat, and even soapy dishwater. All have nutrients your plants will appreciate.

"To keep yourself from sleeping on your back, get a T-shirt that has a pocket on it. Sew a racquetball into the pocket, and wear the T-shirt backward. This has worked wonders for my husband. He breathes much better when he sleeps on his side." — I.L. in Oklahoma

"I always save my Styrofoam egg cartons. My children use them for all kinds of crafts, but mostly as paint pots. They can sit brushes in the non-cup side, and if they take a break, it can be re-covered and put in the refrigerator for later." — C.J. in North Carolina

Stress can cause tension headaches (which account for 75 percent of all headaches), and of course headaches can create additional stress. Regular relaxation breaks may prevent this type of headache, but if one does occur, stress management that focuses on relaxation and overcoming negative thinking can help reduce the pain. A study of 200 adults suffering from chronic tension headaches (in pain more than 15 days a month), published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, found stress management alone was able to reduce pain in 35 percent of participants. When stress management was combined with antidepressant medication, pain was effectively reduced for 64 percent. See a doctor if your headaches are severe and chronic.

Get Fit with Zumba

By Zoe Cittern

Suzanne Haedicke first got a passion for fitness when she was sixteen and it hasn't faded since. The Zumba instructor explains, "I would always record the twenty minute workout TV show when I was younger and then invite my friends over. I'd make a big space in my living room and we'd all work out in there. I probably drove my mum nuts!"

Suzanne soon went on to teach exercise classes at the age of eighteen in Toronto and has since carved a successful fitness career. She is a certified fitness instructor, personal trainer and yoga specialist. However last year she got passion for a new Latin inspired fitness class.

Zumba first broke out in South America in the mid 1990s and was then taken to North America in the early nineties; it has since spread across 30 countries. Created by fitness trainer Alberto Perez, it uses 75% Latin music and 25% international music. It incorporates Latin moves such as salsa and samba and weaves together a warm-up session, toning, cardio and a cool down. Zumba merges music and movement together, with the Latin music being the primary force behind the class.

Some songs are slower than others so the class carries you through a diverse program. The resistance training is combined to tone and sculpt your body while burning fat. Suzanne says that the best thing about Zumba is that, "Because it's so much fun, although you are exercising you don't even realize it. It's an aerobic workout which we all know works but it's more fun which will make you keep coming back."

Not only is Zumba a great way to keep fit and stay in shape it helps those meet others who are new to the community.

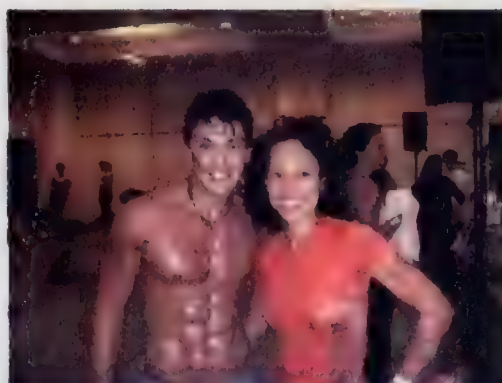

Suzanne offers two types of Zumba; Regular Zumba for active participants and all ages. Zumba Gold for the active older adult or for someone who is an absolute beginner to dance classes who can then move to the regular class once they've found their feet.

Suzanne first discovered Zumba two years ago. After watching several new fitness programs come and go she waited patiently to see if Zumba would have the staying power it needed. After noticing the potential she finally took the leap into Zumba the following year and trained under Perez himself. She brought Zumba to Haliburton last September and it has been a buzz amongst residents ever since.

Suzanne has lived in Haliburton since 1997 after marrying her husband Jan in the Highlands. Together they have run the popular Halimar Resort for the past eight years. Though fitness has always been a passion of Suzanne's, she got together with fitness trainer Shawn Hagerman when she first moved to the area and has been teaching fitness classes across the village at St. Georges Church, Patient News and now Zumba at Blue Sky Yoga Studio. She says that "when my clients tell me how great the exercise classes have been for them that's what keeps me doing the classes over and over again. I love the satisfaction you get from the success and achievement of how the exercise helps your clients. I had one lady who I've been teaching for over ten years, she told me she could now sit down and play with her grandchildren. Teaching comes natural, when you feel right about something you feel good about it."

Once Zumba becomes more known to the community Suzanne hopes to bring Zumba Kids to the area, "I want to get kids moving and ideally I'd love to teach fitness on a full time basis. It would be great to see more men come to the classes too, it's so much fun for everyone." She creates new moves for Zumba frequently and tests them on her husband, "He's my guinea pig, if he can understand the moves then anyone can!"

It's not just Suzanne who is raving about Zumba, her clients quickly saw the spark that came from joining the class. Cristina Rico one regular participant says, "I love it, it's very uplifting, it's exciting music and I'm very happy with it. The program works with your core muscles and it's great for cardio. It's a lot of fun!" Another happy client is Nancy Brownsberger, she says, "It's fantastic, it's a breath of fresh air in the winter season.

It's almost as if you've gone somewhere else for the hour. It's fun and challenging and Suzanne is a phenomenal instructor. I definitely can't wait for Tuesday nights every week."

Zumba runs at Blue Sky Yoga Studio in Haliburton. The spring session runs for twelve weeks and starts April 5th at 10.30am for Zumba Gold and April 6th at 5.15pm for Regular Zumba. Classes are one hour each and you can still join up with the current winter session. The best way to sign up is through email, suzanne.zumba@gmail.com or you can phone her on 457-1300 or phone the studio on 457-3500.

Curves Locations in the Area Host Food Drive to Benefit Local Families

Curves is encouraging women in the local area to show their philanthropic strength by participating in the annual Curves Food Drive. Although donating food to families in need is its own reward, the club is offering compelling incentives for both existing and potential members who participate.

From March 1st to 31st, Curves locations in the area will collect non-perishable items and monetary donations for food banks in the local area.

The goal, according to Curves Founder Diane Heavin, is for the community to come together to help families in need. She says, "At the core of our business is the message that women are stronger when they rally together and that is the point we hope to bring home with our food drive. We want to show our communities just how powerful the generosity of our members can be."

According to Heavin, all members who donate a bag of groceries or make a minimum donation of $30 during the month of March will receive a reusable Curves grocery freezer bag for free. Non-members who do likewise between March 1st and 13th can join Curves for free. Curves will waive the cost to join.

Curves locations in the area will be participating in a company-wide contest for the most food drive donations collected by Curves locations across the nation. Winners will receive one of several cash prizes to be donated to their local food bank. Each year, Curves locations collectively donate millions of pounds of food to feed the hungry.

"We hope women in the Haliburton area will come together and participate in this initiative," adds Heavin. "Even if you're not thinking about joining a gym, you can still drop off your donations. There are so many families, right here in our own community, who need our help."

For more information about the Curves Food Drive, contact Wanda Byers on (705) 457-9256 or 97PY0S6ML@curvesmail.com

MY DAD

My next birthday doesn't look like a milestone on the calendar, no zero or five at the end of it, but it has tremendous significance to me and my family. My dad died the day before his fifty-second birthday, and as I approach it a lot of emotions are stirring.

I felt a strong connection with my dad: he was the calm in the storm, my personal encyclopaedia, and my scout leader. He introduced us to beauty in many forms by taking us rock hounding, gallery hopping and antique sale hunting. He didn't have a formal education past high school, but his thirst for knowledge kept him pursuing new endeavours. He started off as a builder; became a stock broker after his first heart attack; and was a property manager, a mortgage broker and a real estate appraiser before becoming an officer of the Ontario Rent Review Commission – the only non-lawyer to have been offered the appointment. At his passing, Gerald Irwin Mandel was so well respected in his job he'd been elevated to the post of Appeals Commissioner.

My dad also had a lot of hobbies. He was a skilled woodworker, enjoyed learning about computers and bonsai plants, and even wrote a song on the vibes. To say he was curious would be an understatement.

It is said the good die young, and I can't think of a better death than my dad's. He was dancing at the wedding of his friend's daughter's, went to bed, and passed away shortly thereafter. I'll never forget the funeral and the rabbi telling us Moses also died on his birthday. This left me with a sense of completeness: a sense that his was a life well lived.

So here I am, twenty-six years later: half my life with my dad, half without. There was a tendency for me to measure my life to his, compare our accomplishments, but I don't think that is useful anymore. Instead, I prefer to look at the foundation he, my mother and my other ancestors set and ask: have I added to it? My grandparents came to this country with nothing and created financial security; my parents had financial security and provided us with an education. I have tried to take that knowledge and transform it into shared wisdom, and whether I succeed or not, only time and my actions will tell.

My dad, like Moses, wasn't perfect, and I find myself imperfect in similar ways. Life has thrown me some interesting curves perhaps in order to face parallel challenges and maybe find redemption for us both. We all, in our gut, seek to transcend our mistakes and find that place of freedom. I recently stumbled upon this excerpt while reading The House of Mirth (1905) by Edith Wharton.

"My idea of success is personal freedom."

"Freedom? Freedom from worries?"

"From everything – from money, from poverty, from ease and anxiety, from all the material accidents. To keep a kind of republic of the spirit – that's what I call success."

"...There was no one...to tell me about the republic of the spirit."

"There never is – it's a country one has to find the way to one's self."

"But I should never have found my way there if you hadn't told me."

"Ah, there are sign posts – but one has to know how to read them."

In taking us to galleries, museums, and nature trails, by continuing to pursue his education, by refining his craft as a woodworker, by providing for his family, and by being a just arbitrator my dad familiarized us with the landscape. The Republic of the Spirit for me is where people live in harmony with the land and with each other; where there are no wants; where there is only being curious, creative, and compassionate. My dad didn't teach us this; he showed us.

The title for The House of Mirth, came from Ecclesiastes 7:4: The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth. I must be wise because I have such sadness in my heart: sadness that the sign posts have been so obscured and sadness that my dad is no longer here to talk to about these things.

Along the trail, the strongest two hikers are at the front and the back of the pack thus assuring the whole group gets to its destination safely. My dad died at age 52 and my grandmother died close to her 104th birthday ( $26 \times 2 = 52$  x  $2 = 104$  hmm). Am I here to lead the way or to follow and help others along? I don't know what my fate will be but what I do know is - I miss my dad.

Amortization

with Susan Lee

Amortization refers to the process of paying off a mortgage in regular payments composed of both interest and principal.

The Amortization Period is the time over which the mortgage is to be completely repaid, assuming equal payments.

This means that when looking, for example, at a mortgage with a 25-year amortization period, it would take 25 years to reduce the balance to zero, if all regular payments were made on time and the terms (payment, interest rate) remained the same.

An Amortization Schedule is a table showing the amounts of principal and interest which make up each of the periodic level payments and the outstanding principal balance of the loan after each level payment is made.

It can take many years before you're paying more principal than interest.

Once you get to that point, it can feel kind of empowering. I refer to the date as the "balance of power."

Here's a table that shows how long it takes to reach this point for the five standard amortizations (Assuming a $100,000 mortgage at 4.25% with monthly payments.)

| Amortization | Payment | Years Until Principle portion of the payment is greater than the interest portion. |
|--------------|---------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 15 years     | $757   | 0 (You pay more principle on day 1)                                                |
| 20 years     | $617   | 3.7                                                                                |
| 25 years     | $541   | 8.7                                                                                |
| 30 years     | $490   | 13.7                                                                               |
| 35 years     | $450   | 18.7                                                                               |

As this table shows, tacking on 10 years to your amortization means it takes 10 additional years to reach the balance of power (i.e., make payments that are more principle than interest). Column #3 is roughly accurate regardless of the mortgage amount.

So the moral is this: if you're considering a 35-year amortization for your next home mortgage take the time to learn about the benefits of making bi-weekly mortgage payments or the advantages of lump payments otherwise, you'll be an interest slave much longer than you want to be.

Helping you plan your future, Susan Lee

A Lost Last Will and Testament

Suppose you know that your father had a last will and testament before he passed away. You know that he went to a lawyer who prepared the will with the formalities required by the legislation, the Succession Law Reform Act. You know that you were the named beneficiary in the will inheriting his estate. Your father dies but you cannot find his executed will which the lawyer gave him. However, the lawyer has an unexecuted copy of the will. In these circumstances, you should apply to the court to prove a lost will. Any person claiming to have a financial interest in an estate may make an application to have a testamentary instrument put forward as the last will and testament of the deceased.

The law is well settled and difficult to meet. There are two main issues. Firstly, you must prove that the will was lost and not destroyed. If an original, executed will was in the possession of the testator (your father) and cannot be located following the testator's death, a rebuttable presumption arises that the testator destroyed the will with the intention of revoking it. The courts have held that the burden on the person who is attempting to rebut this presumption is a heavy burden. There must be a very strong case to be made out that the will was lost and not destroyed.

Secondly, you must prove that the copy of the unexecuted will is a true copy of the lost executed will. This issue involves proving the proper execution of the lost will and proving that the contents of the unexecuted copy is a true copy of the lost will and not simply a draft of the will found in the lawyer's file. A will is properly executed when the testator signs it in front of two witnesses. The proper execution of the will may be proven by the testimony of the lawyer who prepared the will because he or she is usually one of the witnesses to the testator's execution of the will. In order to prove the contents of the lost will, you must have cogent evidence that establishes beyond a reasonable doubt the contents of the lost will. Factors that a court may look at to accept the copy of the unexecuted will as reflective of the contents of the lost will include the nature of the content of the unexecuted will itself and the testator's relationship to the beneficiary. If you find yourself attempting to prove a lost will and have no copy of the unexecuted will to prove its contents, other evidence has been accepted by the courts such as, solicitor's interview notes with the testator or oral testimony from close family members. In the next column, I will be talking about other estate matters.

Change of Location for Mumford Station

By Zoe Cittern

"Most of the customers at Harcourt followed me here" laughs Jan Sorenson owner of the Mumford Station Café in Wilberforce. It recently changed location from Harcourt and now proudly sits where the former Crossroads Café was situated. The change of scenery has meant that many who live in Wilberforce who cannot drive to larger towns now have a place to dine in walking distance or a short taxi ride as it's in such a central location in the village.

The Mumford Station opened on January 1st: "we are still painting and finding a place for everything" says Jan. After the lease was up on the Harcourt building Jan made some calls, and decided on the Wilberforce location. Mumford Station had been a hit with the locals in Harcourt and the frequent snowmobilers in the winter season and cottagers in the warmer months.

The Station offers up good ole diner style food and breakfast everyday of the week. Soups, sandwiches, burgers, fish and chips are some of the items you'll find on the menu. Along with Thursday night wing night and all you can eat fish and chips on Fridays the café is one little secret of the Highlands you won't want to miss out on.

Jan claims that "since we've moved the clubhouse sandwiches have proved to be pretty popular. I try to keep the prices affordable here so people can dine out twice a week instead of once a month. The weekends can be really crazy here, a lot of the time its standing room only, with the cottagers in the summer you see the familiar faces again so it's nice."

Jan plans to expand the café in the summer with a grab and go bar that is fixed to the property; she'll offer soup, sandwiches, pizza, muffins etc to those who are in a hurry. "It's really wasted space at the moment so it would be great to do something with it, it'll be convenient for people to pull right up and get something" says Jan. She also plans for a friend to paint a large mural of a train on a wall to tie in with the concept of the name along with visualising something for the patio next to the café in the summer.

Jan and her husband John moved from Brampton to the country after their daughter was attending college in Lindsay. Jan explains "we asked ourselves what are we doing in the city? John fishes and hunts and we've always come up to the area to cottage so it just seemed to make sense." That was 20 years ago and they have been in Wilberforce ever since. She adds "we go back to the city sometimes and wonder how did we ever live here; it's definitely a completely different life-style to what we have now."

The Mumford Station has created a place for families to get together over a home-cooked meal, Jan comments that "we wanted to try and create that family atmosphere. You'll find people talking across the room to each other who don't even know each other, I have great employees here, we all have a laugh and it makes the day. The customers are great too, you get to know the people and treat them like family; if people don't come in for a day then you start to wonder where they are."

Mumford Station is fully licensed and is open Monday to Wednesday 7am-7pm, Thursday and Fridays from 7am to 8pm, Saturdays 8am to 8pm and Sundays 8am to 7pm. Call (705) 448-9960 for more information. □

What When Where Why How

Why do you have to punch two holes in a large juice can to let the juice out?

It has to do with vacuums---spaces without gases, liquids or can, air rushes in to replace it or else a vacuum forms where the juice used to be.

When you pour from a can with just one hole in it, you get a squirt of juice and then nothing but a "glug glug" sound as air is sucked in through the hole.

You have to wait until the space left by the squirting juice fills with air before you get more juice. But if you punch two holes in the can, air goes in one hole as juice flows freely out the other one.

How To Call The Police When You're Old And Don't Move Fast Anymore.

George Phillips of Meridian, Mississippi, was going up to bed, when his wife told him that he'd left the light on in the garden shed, which she could see from the bedroom window. George opened the back door to go turn off the light, but saw that there were people in the shed stealing things.

He phoned the police, who asked 'Is someone in your house?'

He said 'No.' Then they said 'All patrols were busy, you should lock your doors and an officer will be along when one is available.'

George said, 'Okay' He hung up the phone and counted to 30. Then he phoned the police again. 'Hello, I just called you a few seconds ago because there were people stealing things from my shed. Well, you don't have to worry about them now because I just shot them.' and he hung up.

Within five minutes, six Police Cars, a SWAT Team, a Helicopter, two Fire Trucks, a Paramedic, and an Ambulance showed up at the Phillips' residence, and caught the burglars red-handed.

One of the Policemen said to George, 'I thought you said that you'd shot them!'

George said, 'I thought you said there was nobody available!'

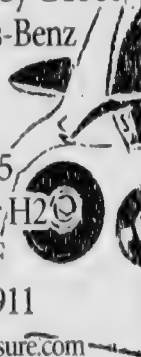

...Don't mess with old people.

It was longtime U.S. Congressman from Minnesota Eugene J. McCarthy who made the following sage observation: "It is dangerous for a national candidate to say things that people might remember."

You may not be surprised to learn that the portions offered in fast-food restaurants have increased in size during the past few decades, but you may find the amount of the increase to be shocking: Portions are now anywhere from two to five times as large as they were in 1980.
